

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTORY	21
1. The verb phrase	21
1.1. Morphology of the verb	21
1.2. Formal system of the verb	21
1.3. Semantic system of the verb	23
First modification: “past” and “remoteness”, 23; Second modification: current relevance, 23; Third modification: limited duration, 23; Fourth modification: the passive, 24
2. Types of verb: a syntactic classification.....	24
2.1. Imperative	24
Imperative with do , 25; Imperative with the personal pronoun You , 25; Exhortative imperative with Let's... , 25; Imperative with Why don't... , 25
2.2. Copula verbs	26
Current copula verbs, 26; Resultative copula verbs, 27; Inchoative verbs, 27; Get and become , 27; Come, fall, run, turn, wear , 28
2.3. Non-copula, extensive verbs.....	29
Transitive and intransitive verbs, 29; Monotransitive verbs, 29; Ditransitive verbs, 30; Both the Mary sent the book to John and Mary sent John the book patterns, 29; Only the He described it to me pattern, 29; Only the They gave us a warm welcome pattern, 29; Ambitransitive verbs, 32; Reflexive verbs, 32; Reflexives in prepositional phrases of place, 34; Reciprocal verbs, 34; Complex transitive verbs, 34

3. Stative and dynamic verbs	35
3.1. Categories of stative verbs	36
“Private” verbs, 36; Verbs of perception, 36; Verbs of mental, emotional and cognitive states, 36; Relational verbs, 36; Verbs with both stative and dynamic status, 37; The dynamic use of stative verbs, 37; Be and have as dynamic verbs, 37
4. Telic and atelic verbs	39
5. Time, tense and aspect	40
5.1. Time and tense	40
5.2. Aspect	41
6. The passive	41
6.1. Structure	42
Tense and modality, 42; Aspect, 43; Stranded prepositions, 43; Ditransitive verbs, 43; Complex transitive verbs, 44; Catenative verbs: the He is thought to be pattern, 45; Perception verbs, 45
6.2. Uses of the passive	46
Short passive, 46; Long passive, 146; Get as passive marker, 48; Semantic passive, 48
7. Auxiliary operators be and have	50
7.1. The NICE properties	50
7.2. Verb paradigms of be and have	50
Be , 50; Have , 51
7.3. Questions and answers	52
Polar questions (and short-form answers), 52; Content questions (Wh - questions), 52
7.4. Use of auxiliaries in English	53
Short-form answers, 53; Question tags, 54; Tag questions (echo- questions), 54; Agreement forms, 55; Disagreement forms, 56; Contracted forms of be and have , and limitations on use, 56

PRESENT TENSE	59
1. Simple present tense	59
1.1. Structure	59
Spelling rules for the 3rd-person singular, 59; Pronunciation rules, 60
1.2. Negative and interrogative: the dummy operator do 60
Do and the NICE properties, 61
2. Progressive present tense	62
2.1. Structure	62
Spelling rules for the -ing form, 62
3. Questions and answers (do)	63
3.1. Polar questions (and short-form answers)	63
3.2. Content questions (Wh -questions)	64
3.3. Question tags	64
Indicating expected agreement, 64; As expression of surprise and threat, 65
3.4. Tag questions	65
3.5. Agreement forms	65
3.6. Disagreement forms	65
3.7. Predicate and subject oriented content questions 66
4. Uses of the two present aspects	68
4.1. Simple present tense	68
“Timelessness” and general truths, 68; Regular habits and customs, 68; Permanent characteristics, 68; Permanent scenery, 68; Performatives: demonstration, 69; Performatives: ritualistic proclamations, 69; Commentary, 69; “Historic present”: dramatic and narrative, 69; Headlines, 69; Future reference, 70; Neutralized modal meanings, 70; Simple present and the Italian presente indicativo with modal meaning, 71
4.2. Progressive present tense	72
Ongoing actions and processes, 72; Temporary state, 73; Temporary habit or characteristic, 73; Two actions and aspect: consecutive and “interrupted” actions, 73; Permanent and impermanent scenery, 74

5. Be and have as full dynamic verbs	74
5.1. Be as a dynamic verb	74
5.2. Have as a dynamic verb	74
The 3 forms of have , 75; Semantic features of have , 75
6. Present time adverbials	79
6.1. Definite frequency.....	79
6.2. Indefinite frequency	79
Emphatic adjuncts always , forever , continually , constantly and progressive aspect, 80
6.3. Adverbial clauses of present time	80
PAST TENSE.....	87
1. Simple past tense.....	87
1.1. Structure.....	87
Spelling and pronunciation rules for the past tense (and past participle), 87; Spelling variations for regular past tense verbs, 88; Negative and interrogative. 88; Did and the NICE properties, 89; The use of auxiliaries in everyday language, 89
2. Irregular verbs	90
3. Progressive past tense.....	91
3.1. Structure, 91
4. Uses of the simple and progressive past tenses	92
4.1. Simple past tense	92
States in the past, 92; Habitual past activities, actions, events and states, 92; Non-habitual actions in the past, durational and non-durational, 92; A tentative past, 93
4.2. Progressive past tense	93
Duration of a non-habit activity, action, event or process, 93; The “time-frame” and the semantics of the verb, 93; Telic and atelic verbs and aspect, 94; Temporary states, habits or characteristics in the past, 95; Disapproval or reproach as to habitual occurrences, 95; Past plans or arrangements not fulfilled, 95; Tentative past, 95

4.3. Simple and progressive aspects combined.....	95
Past “interrupted” actions, 96; Past consecutive actions, 96; Past simultaneous actions strongly dependent on each other, 96; Past simultaneous actions independent of one another, 97; Journalistic use of the two aspects, 97; Narrative uses of the two aspects, 97; “Scene-setting” in narrative, 98; “Permanent” and “impermanent” scenery, 98; Grammatical aspect and “real-life” duration, 99
5. Used to and would : past tense markers	103
5.1. English and Italian past tenses.....	103
5.2. Used to and would , and past tense
Marginal modal used to , 104; Used to and be used to , 104; Modal would indicating typical behaviour and characteristics, 105; Modal will and would expressing disapproval or reproach, 105; Modal might , 106; Used to and would compared, 106; Used to and would as “marked” forms, 106; Used to and “scene-setting”, 107; Would as stylistic reinforcement, 107
PRESENT PERFECT	113
1. Present perfect as indefinite, resultative past	113
1.1. Structure.....	113
1.2. Present perfect as an indefinite resultative past	114
Present perfect and passato prossimo , 114; Present perfect and past tense compared, 115; British and American English, 117; Past simple and definite past time, 117; Explicit and implicit reference to definite past time, 117; Present perfect, past tense and order of information, 118; Italian and English tenses and temporal distance, 120; Time adverbs with the simple past and the present perfect, 121; Typical time adverbs used with the past tense, 121; Typical time adverbs used with the present perfect, 121; Still and yet , 121; Already , 122; Just , 122; Subject/verb inversion with thematized negative and restrictive adverbs, 123
2. Present perfect and “up-to-now” duration.....	126
3. Progressive aspect of the present perfect.....	128
3.1. Progressive present perfect: indefinite, resultative past.....	128
Present perfect and atelic verbs, 129; Present perfect, and telic verbs of “activity” and “result”, 130; Telic and atelic verbs. Verbs with an

“internal completion point”, 130; Simple aspect with a “result”, 133; Adverbials that “break” the continuity of the progressive aspect, 133; The English speaker’s predilection for progressive aspect, 134
3.2. Progressive present perfect as “up-to-now” duration	135
For and since , 135; For and since , and the semantics of the verb, 136; It has been / is ages since... , 137; Since with “parallel” activities and processes (“up to now”), 138; Progressive present perfect and negation, 141
4. Past perfect.....	143
4.1. Structure.....	143
4.2. Use	144
Past perfect and indirect discourse, 144; Past perfect and non-reality, 144; Past perfect and barely/hardly/scarcely , 145
5. Questions and answers	149
Polar questions (and short-form answers), 149; Content questions (Wh - questions), 149; Question tags, 149; Tag questions, 149; Agreement forms, 150; Disagreement forms, 150
 MODALITY	 151
1.1. The double system of modality.....	151
1.2. Core modal verbs.....	153
The 7 formal characteristics of core modal verbs, 153
1.3. Performative verbs.....	154
1.4. Semi-modal verbs	155
Can and will : core modals on the periphery. An exception, 155
1.5. The 3 fields of modality	156
Epistemic modality (speaker’s stance), 156; Deontic modality, 157; Dynamic modality, 157; Root modality, 158
1.6. Further modal concepts.....	158
Discourse-orientation and subject-orientation, 158; Potentiality and actuality, 159; The transversality of modal verbs, 159
 2. Epistemic modality	 159

2.1. Epistemic possibility.....	160
May and might , 160; Present and future reference and aspect, 161; Past reference, tense and aspect, 161; The semantics of negation, 163; Likely / likelihood : semantically related to may and might , 163; Quasi-subjunctive may and might , 165; Clauses with -ever determiners, 165; Adverbial clauses of concession, 165; Only may in benedictions and curses, 166; Epistemic might and root could compared, 166; Interrogatives (can and could), 166
2.2. Epistemic necessity.....	167
Must , 167; Negation in must , 167; Reference to the future, 168; Reference to the past, 168; Reference in the past, 168; Will , 169; Would , 169; Have to and have got to , 170; Should and ought to , 170; Present and future reference, 171; Negation, 171; Aspect and tense, 171; Quasi-subjunctive should , 172; With adjectives of mainly emotional states, 172; With adjectives indicating modality or volition, 172
3. Root necessity.....	174
3.1. Deontic and dynamic (must).....	174
Must , 175; Shall , 175; Had better , 175; Want to , 176
3.2. Have to , have got to and must	176
3.3. Have to and the principle of “actuality”.....	177
3.4. Should and ought to / might	178
Should have , 179; Might (could / should) , 180; Might as well , 180
3.5. Root necessity and negation.....	180
Must not and need not , 181; Don't have to and haven't got to , 181; Need and need to : core modal and semi-modal, 182
3.6. Semi-modals as core and the pragmatics of discourse	183
Substitution of must by have to , have got to , be supposed to , be meant to , 184; From need to need to , 184; Be supposed to and be meant to , 185
3.7. Root necessity and interrogatives.....	185
“Neutral” questions, 185; “Coloured” questions, 186; Shall to express willingness or “offer”, 186; Reluctance or reproach in questions, 187
3.8. Is to (be meant to / be supposed to)	187
Is to as a root necessity modal, 187; Is to as a future time marker, 188; Is to as a marker of root possibility, 188; Be supposed / meant to , 188; “Quotative” be supposed / meant to , 189

3.9. Root necessity and the past	189
Had to and actuality, 189; Did not need/have to do / need not have done , 190; Was to and non-actuality (past obligations), 192; Was to as a future-in-the-past time marker, 193; Was to as a marker of root possibility, 193; Was (supposed/meant) to / should have , 194; Was going to , 197
4. Root possibility	202
4.1. Permission: can (may)	203
4.2. Possibility: can	203
Aspectual can with “private” verbs of perception and mental states, 204
4.3. Ability: can (be able to)	205
4.4. Root possibility and the past.....	205
Could , 205; Be able to , and the principle of “actuality”, 206; Manage, succeed , 206; Could, was able to , and negation, 207; Hypothetical forms of possibility, 209; Perfective forms of possibility, 209
FUTURE TIME, VOLITION AND INTENTIONS	211
1. Future time and attitudes to the future	211
2. Will and shall as future and modal.....	212
2.1. Structure.....	212
2.2. Will (shall) as prediction and “future tense”	212
Will, shall and 'll and pronunciation, 213
2.3. Core modals will and shall	213
2.4. Root will	214
Volition and intention, 214; Characteristic or typical behaviour, 214; Requests and commands, 214
2.5. Epistemic modal will	215
2.6. The neutrality of will	215
2.7. Modal shall	217
2.8. Summary of meanings of shall	217
“Weak”, 1st-person prediction (future), 217; Addressee’s volition (modal), 218; “Necessity” in “frozen”, formal language – legal, financial, etc., 218; Deontic negative shall not/shan’t to indicate “threat” and “promise”, 218

3. Progressive present tense as future.....	219
3.1. Grammatical limitations on verbs.....	220
Only the sphere of human influence, 220; With central dynamic verbs, 220; A not-too-remote future, 220; Future time adverbial necessary, 221
4. Be going to	221
4.1. Root modal be going to	222
Present intentions concerning the future, 222; Unfulfilled past intentions, 222; Be going to and will - expressions of intentions (root modality), 222; Will as “offer” and the progressive present as “sudden decision”, 223
4.2. Epistemic be going to	223
4.4. Deontic be going to (and progressive present)	224
4.5. Be going to : an “all-purpose” future.....	224
5. Simple present tense as future.....	226
5.1. Italian presente indicativo and modal meanings
6. Progressive will (shall) future	227
6.1. Progressive will (shall) future with a literal meaning.....	228
6.2. Progressive will (shall) future with an extended meaning	228
7. Perfective will (shall) have	229
7.1. Will (shall) have as “prediction”	230
7.2. Will have as “predictability” (epistemic will)	230
8. Indications of future time.....	231
8.1. Future time adverbials	231
8.2. Subordinate time clauses with future reference.....	231
8.3. Time clause subordinators	232
As long as and until , 232
8.4. The importance of aspect.....	233

HYPOTHESIS AND UNREALITY	237
1. Type 1 conditionals: “open”, real conditions	237
1.1. Time and condition	238
1.2. Real conditions and aspect	238
1.3. Modal verbs in type 1 real conditions.....	239
Will , 239; Be going to , 240; Shall , 240; Can , 240; Should and ought to , 240; Quasi-subjunctive should , 241
2. Type 2 conditionals: “hypothetical” and unreal.....	242
2.1. Verbal aspect	243
2.2. A note on “subjunctive” past tense	243
“Subjunctive” were/was , 243
2.3. Modal verbs in type 2 conditional clauses.....	244
Would , 244; “Pragmatic” uses of should and would , 245; Should : hypothetical necessity (should and would/should have to compared), 245; The two groups of core modals, 246; Were/was to in the subordinate type 2 conditional, 247; Could , 247; Hypothetical could , 247; Could in hypothetical possibility, 247; Could in hypothetical permission, 248; Could and hypothetical ability, 248; Might , 248; Hypothetical might , 248; Epistemic might , 248; Root might , 249
3. Type 3 conditionals: past, rejected conditions	254
3.1. Verbal aspect	254
3.2. “Inversion” forms in the subordinate conditional clause.....	254
3.3. Embedded clauses in subordinate clauses	255
3.4. Modal verbs in type 3 conditionals.....	255
3.5. Mixed type 2 and type 3 conditionals.....	256
4. Other uses of the “subjunctive” past tense	260
4.1. It’s high time	260
4.2. Wishes.....	261
I wish I were/was , 261; I wish you would , 262
INDIRECT DISCOURSE.....	265
1. Indirect statements, questions and commands	265

1.1. Indirect statements	265
1.2. Say and tell : reporting verbs	265
1.3. Indirect questions	266
1.4. Indirect commands	267
Reporting verbs for commands, 267
2. Past indirect discourse and tense backshift	268
2.1. Tense backshift (present, past, and present perfect tenses	268
2.2. Backshift and deictic expressions of time and place	269
2.3. Neutralized backshift	270
3. Backshift with the future and conditionals	271
3.1. Future-in-the-past	271
3.2. Conditionals-in-the-past	272
The multivalency of would , 273
3.3. Future-in-the-past time adverb changes	273
4. Backshift with modal verbs	275
4.1. The major group	275
4.2. The minor group	276
4.3. Modals-in-the-past	277
Indirect epistemic modals and semi-modals, 277; Indirect root necessity modals and semi-modals, 277; Indirect modals of possibility, permission and ability, 278
5. Indirect negative root necessity	278
5.1. Must	278
Four examples of must , 279; Negation, 279; Needn't / didn't need to , 280
6. Flexibility and tone in indirect discourse	286
6.1. Introductory “reporting” verbs	287
6.2. Direct and indirect discourse presentation in narrative	287
6.3. Hybrid modal verbs in free indirect discourse	287
 FINITE AND NON-FINITE VERBS	 293
1. Finite verbs in non-finite adverbial clauses	293

1.1. Clauses of reason	293
1.2. Enough / too : sufficiency and excess	294
Enough and too , and clause linking with for , 294
1.3. Clauses of comparison	295
As and like , 295; Comparison with as and like , 296; As : in the role of... / Like : similar to..., 296; As in other adverbial clauses, 297; Clauses of comparison, 297; Clauses of manner, 297; Clauses of reason, 297; Clauses of concession, 297; Clauses of time, 297; As and as it , 298
1.4. Clauses of purpose	299
To -infinitive clauses, 299; Purpose clause subordinators, 300; Purpose that -clauses, 301; Subordinators lest , for fear that , in case , 302; For + noun phrase + infinitive as purpose clause, 301
1.5. Clauses of result	304
Infinitive clauses of result, 304; Clauses of result and purpose, 304
2. Non-finite forms of the verb	305
2.1. Participles	305
Past participles, 305; -Ing form in the subordinate clause, 306; To indicate simultaneous actions, 306; As as an abbreviated time, reason and manner clause, 306; The misrelated participle, 306; -Ing form in abbreviated clauses, 307; Clauses of time, 307; Clauses of reason, 308; Clauses of manner, 309; Relative clauses, 309; Clauses of concession, 309
2.2. Nominal -ing form and to -infinitive	309
-Ing form and to -infinitive as verb-based nominals, 310; -Ing form and to -infinitive as complement and object, 310; Verbal characteristics of the -ing form, 312; Nominal characteristics of the -ing form, 312, -Ing form in prepositional complements, 312
CATENATIVE VERBS	315
1. Some basic characteristics of catenative verbs	315
1.1. Aspect and the passive	315
1.2. The second noun phrase	316
1.3. Lexical aspect	316
1.4. Syntactic and semantic classification	316

2. Catenative verbs followed by the to -infinitive.....	318
2.1. The I agree to go pattern.....	318
Semantic range, 318; Verbs with an alternative construction with the -ing form, 318; Verbs with an alternative construction with a that -clause, 319; Feel, look, smell, sound and taste , 319; Happen, chance and prove , 320
2.2. The I want to go / I want you to go pattern.....	320
Semantic range, 320; Verbs with an alternative construction with the -ing form, 321; Verbs with an alternative construction with a that -clause, 321; Expect , 321
2.3. The I order you to go pattern	321
Semantic range, 321; Verbs with an alternative construction with the -ing form, 321; Verbs with an alternative construction with a that -clause, 322
2.4. The I arranged to come/for him to come pattern	322
2.5. The I know him to be pattern	322
Semantic range, 323; Verbs with an alternative construction with the -ing form, 323; Verbs with an alternative construction with a that -clause, 323
2.6. The He is known to be pattern	323
Verbs with an alternative construction with a that -clause, 323
3. Catenative verbs followed by verbs in the -ing form.....	324
3.1. The I enjoy reading pattern.....	324
Verbs that cannot be followed by a second noun phrase, 325; Verbs that must be followed by a second noun phrase, 325; Verbs with an alternative form with a that -clause, 325; Suggest, propose, insist and recommend , 326
3.2. The I resented his/him doing that pattern	326
3.3. The I found them doing it pattern	327
3.4. The We saw the plane landing/land pattern	328
4. Catenative verbs followed by to -infinitive or -ing form.....	329
4.1. Difference in emphasis	329
4.2. Change in meaning	329
Forget, remember , 329; Regret , 330; Try , 330; Like, love, dislike, hate, prefer , 330; Dread , 331; Allow , 331; Propose , 332; Mean , 332; Need, want , 332; Go on, stop , 332; Come, go, send, take , 333

PHRASAL VERBS.....	341
1. Prepositional verbs.....	342
1.1. Verbs with grammatically obligatory prepositions
1.2. Verbs followed by prepositional adverbs.....	342
1.3. Phrasal-prepositional verbs.....	342
2. Phrasal verbs.....	343
2.1. Intransitive phrasal verbs.....	343
2.2. Transitive phrasal verbs.....	344
2.3. Position of the particle.....	344
2.4. Position of the pronoun object.....	344
2.5. Some common particles used in phrasal verbs.....	346
Down, 346; Up, 346; Out, 347; On, 347; Off, 348
2.6. Direct adverbial particles and inversion in initial, thematized position.....	357
APPENDIX: IRREGULAR VERBS.....	359
KEY TO EXERCISES.....	365